Thank You to the Communities

Thank you to the communities we serve and work with to help make a better life for our children and families. With our mandate to work alongside leadership, we are partners and a part of each community. We continue to strive towards a day where all of our families are healthy and raising happy, strong and proud children. As we continue the important work we do in child and family services, we truly appreciate the guidance, wisdom and values of each community.

 Created by the First Nation leadership in our region back in 1984, Tikinagan is a community-based child wellbeing agency rooted in and accountable to the communities we serve. We are a large team of caring staff working in First Nations and supporting our families from our 30 First Nations.

We are here because we want to protect our children, help our families and nurture our communities.

OUR MANDATE

Tikinagan Child and Family Services has a dual mandate. It is one of 53 Children's Aid Societies in Ontario mandated under the Child, Youth and Family Services Act to protect children from harm. We are accountable to Ontario for this responsibility. We are also mandated by our Chiefs to provide services that are culturally sensitive to the needs of Indigenous children, families and First Nations. We are accountable to the Chiefs and to the communities for this responsibility.

OUR VISION

The Answers Lie Within The Communities

The Creator entrusted First Nations with the sacred responsibility of protecting our children and developing strong families and healthy communities. The Chiefs created Tikinagan to support and strengthen our children, our families, and our communities. The future of our communities is our children. They need to be nurtured within their families and communities. As such, community responsibility for child protection is an essential aspect of First Nations' self-government.

Mamow Obiki-ahwahsoowin is the Tikinagan service model. In Ojibway/Oji-Cree, Mamow Obiki-ahwahsoowin means, "everyone working together to raise our children." It is a system of protecting and caring for children and supporting families that has been designed and is delivered by First Nations people.

Mamow Obiki-ahwahsoowin represents the culmination of almost 35 years of work to develop a culturally appropriate response to children and families who are in need of help in the First Nation communities. In developing Mamow Obiki-ahwahsoowin, we have sought to be true to the original vision that the Chiefs and Elders had when Tikinagan was created. The service model is now described in detail in a set of comprehensive service manuals, including service standards and policies, and Mamow Obiki-ahwahsoowin is designed to respect the inherent authority of First Nations to care for our own children.

It acknowledges that our First Nation mandate supersedes provincial legislation and that our ultimate goal is the pursuit complete First Nation jurisdiction over our own child welfare services. Until this goal is achieved. Mamow Obiki-ahwahsoowin services are designed to be culturally appropriate and meet the needs of our First Nations and provincial legislation, regulations

Customary care is an integral element of Mamow Obiki-ahwahsoowin. Within the customary care system, the First Nation Chief and Council have the authority to declare children to be placed in Tikinagan care when removal from their home is required. The First Nation, parents, Mamow Obiki-ahwahsoowin caregivers and children in care sign a Mamow Obiki-ahwahsoowin Care Agreement for children coming into the agency's care. Mamow Obiki-ahwahsoowin care puts the decision in the hands of families, extended family, communities, and First Nation leadership, and not mainstream Court systems.

This has been a year that no one could have ever predicted. The COVID-19 pandemic has affected our families and communities in many ways – some bad, but also good. We are all continuing to cope in new ways and we're having to make sacrifices for everyone's safety. Extended families have been kept apart for the safety of their most vulnerable. People were not able to come together with family to grieve our losses. However, this pandemic has also made us slow down, look at what's important, and refocus on our families.

In my community, everyone stayed home, families grew closer together, and we relied on each other. I watched my own children and grandchildren really change the way they did things with more meaningful activities and a focus on being together. I have seen more people doing work in their yards, little groups of families getting together, outdoor cooking, and people being out on the land. Communities were brought closer to their culture and saw the importance of being around their families.

A core traditional value held sacred by our people is Mamow Obiki-ahwahsoowin, which means "everyone working together to raise our children." Mamow Obiki-ahwahsoowin brings us together to decide what is best for our children, families, and communities. The pandemic didn't halt our service; it made us find different ways of helping. The care we provide did not change and we continued to focus on families.

I spent a lot of my youth in residential school where parents had no say about how their children were raised. Tikinagan focuses on the people and their families with the support of their community and Elders, working together to determine what is best for the children. This is what I like about our agency: parents and families have a say.

Despite the challenges due to the pandemic, our hard-working team continued to move forward. A Board Committee was created to review our existing By-law No. 1. This is our governing document that defines and outlines: corporate membership, annual chiefs assembly and board meeting guidelines, Elder and youth guidance requirements, Tikinagan's service delivery model Mamow Obiki-ahwahsoowin, and more. We will present the results of this endeavor at a future Annual Chiefs Assembly.

Much progress has been made in our transition to serving the City and District of Thunder Bay. Thunder Bay is a hub of resources needed by our communities including health care and education. Many members from our communities relocate to Thunder Bay for this reason. Since we work with the communities directly, when it comes to the decisions regarding children in care and their families, the communities from which they originate determine how we meet their needs and help support them as if they were home. This means our presence in Thunder Bay is necessary to uphold our traditional values held by our people. Our staff continues to welcome our Thunder Bay families from our communities to our agency.

As a Board of Directors, it is important for us to come together to meet, share and decide what is best for our agency. While technology enables us to do this during a pandemic, I am excited to share these discussions face-to-face with my

I am forever grateful to be able to navigate this global crisis with my fellow Board Members to ensure Tikinagan meets needs of our First Nations. Their continued support and hard work during these unprecedented times has been astonishing. Guidance from our Elder Council has been a blessing. Their knowledge and advice have helped support me in my role as Board Chair through this pandemic.

Our Executive Director and her team continue to lead our agency through this pandemic with strength and empathy, understanding the needs of our people. I want to thank Tikinagan staff, especially the community-based staff. Their efforts to ensure that everyone's needs have been met while ensuring the safety of all parties has been remarkable. Their strength and caring are truly admirable. They are the embodiment of Mamow Obiki-ahwahsoowin.

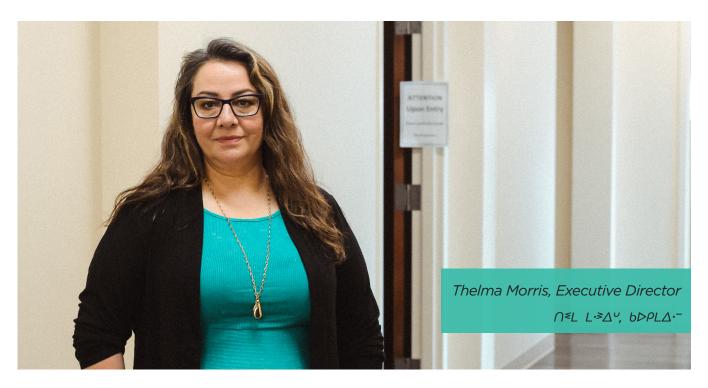

I hope when this pandemic comes to an end, we are all able to come together to celebrate what we gained and honour what and who we lost. I hope we will continue to hold what we learned such as stronger family values and togetherness in our hearts. Until this time comes, stay connected, keep safe and follow the rules, as we are all role models. Tikinagan is always here for support and guidance to our families.

Waachive, Greetings!

This has been a year of change and growth for our children, youth, families, Elders, and our communities. Like Tikinagan's Mamow Obikiahwahsoowin model, we used the wisdom, guidance, teachings, and direction of our communities and Elders to help move forward together.

With guidance from our communities, we have been able to navigate the many changes we have experienced within our organization that have brought about growth. From the challenges of the COVID-19 pandemic to managing our Thunder Bay transition to taking advantage of new funding opportunities, we have been successful at adapting while continuing to meet our communities' needs.

Like many, the pandemic has presented us with many challenges. We had to quickly adapt and change the way we provide service to the communities. Our staff had to respond in different ways to services that were required. Community based staff became more essential than ever to service delivery as was leadership in the communities. We also had to rethink how our staff connected internally and externally.

To accomplish this connection, we had to make sure our staff had the appropriate technologies. We did not have the equipment for our staff to work remotely and complete their work in ways that met provincial and local pandemic regulations. However, thanks to our I.T. team and funding options available from the various levels of government, our staff received necessary equipment and tools to continue their work.

An outcome we did not anticipate was how the technology we implemented would help the agency improve how we communicated internally and externally. We have seen increased communication with foster parents and with children in care as well as creative ways of meeting with the families we support. Internally, we saw growth amongst our staff as they learned new technologies and new ways to communicate with one another.

Additionally, we implemented safety measures to protect our clients, foster parents, and staff. While being respectful of each individual community's pandemic measures as well as following provincial and local public health measures and restrictions, we implemented mandatory screening of employees before they entered the workplace, developed workplace safety plans, strengthened personal protective equipment protocols, and limited public access to agency buildings. Although the pandemic slowed us down, it did not hinder our growth.

In November 2019, we received designation from the Ministry of Children, Community and Social Services to provide services to our community members who reside in the city and district of Thunder Bay effective January 2020. This was accomplished through the hard work and advocacy of the Tikinagan Chiefs Committee who succeeded in fulfilling the direction of our First Nations. We now can respond to referrals and provide supports to our families living or visiting in the Thunder Bay district.

The expansion into Thunder Bay required hiring more than 100 new staff, establishing new office spaces, and ensuring our staff have the proper equipment, vehicles, and support. This was a major undertaking, and I am very grateful to our Thunder Bay leadership team and staff as well as for the First Nation support throughout this process.

Other important changes were thanks to funding accessed through the Canadian Human Rights Tribunal and our committed finance team. We were able to access funding to establish agency operated homes and group homes, improve and meet current infrastructure needs, and provide more support to families in the form of prevention care. This funding has enabled us to enhance our service delivery so we can increase help by investing in more supports for families before there is the need for their children to come into care.

Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the change in the agency's designation and new legislation allowing First Nations to develop their own child welfare laws, we decided to revisit and refocus our strategic planning efforts. We will look at the strategic planning done to date with a new lens and moving forward will incorporate strategic goals to address these current developments. We are committed to following our mandate, meeting the needs of our communities, and ensuring the original vision of the Chiefs is achieved. Our next strategic plan will be stronger than ever.

Moving forward, we are assisting First Nations to take on new and bigger roles in services to families. Our mandate created by the Chiefs in 1984 included having the First Nations provide their own governance and delivery of services to their children and families. We are working to support Band Representative programs and collaborate with them as partners, as well as help First Nations in their efforts to create their own child welfare laws. This was part of the Chiefs' vision for Tikinagan and we are honoured to help First Nations achieve self-governance over these services.

Lastly, I would like to recognize the amazing, continued support we receive from the Chiefs, our communities, and our Elders. Together we have been able support many of our children and families. Local partnerships including schools, health care facilities, community committees, and other organizations have been essential in adjusting to the changes we have been seeing over this last year. Finally, I would like to thank our families for ensuring that the growth of their children and themselves is a priority. We are here for you.

Every day, I lead by example from supporting my own family to supporting the families in our communities. We support our families through hard times – this is how I look at Tikinagan. I want to see our children and families healthy and see our families and communities work together. I want Tikinagan to go into homes as allies with resources and support. I am open to listening and hearing from families and communities about how we can help them become better, stronger, and healthier. If as a collective we can improve the lives of our communities and our children as well as standing with each of our First Nations, I want to be part of the change. I am up for it!

Memekwe Apetawakeesic-Morriseau has drawn from her own experiences being bullied to create award-winning artwork that the 14year-old hopes will help others open up about their experiences.

The artwork — which portrays a young girl surrounded by tall, menacing figures calling her names like "loser" and "crybaby" — was recently named winner of the Red Alert! Bullying Hurts! campaign.

The winning slogan for the campaign "Red Alert! Bullying Hurts!" was voted by First Nation youth and submitted by Joni Trout of Lac Seul First Nation from more than 130 entries.

LISTENING TO OUR ELDERS

Through our First Nations mandate, we are entrusted with the responsibility of providing child and family services to our 30 First Nations. Our Chiefs provide direction on fulfilling this mandate. We also seek guidance on our mandate from our Elders, who carry with them the history of our communities and the roots of our culture. They provide us with wisdom, direction and encouragement. They teach us about respect, trust and honesty, reflection and patience. With their guidance, we have been working towards changing how we work with and support our families and communities through language, cultural approaches, and widening our perspective of working following Mamow Obiki-ahwahsoowin - everyone working together to raise our children.

IMPROVING MAMOW OBIKI-AHWAHSOOWIN

We are excited to be working on improving our Mamow Obiki-ahwahsoowin service model and way of delivery services. We have Elders and youth who are taking part and we have had the opportunity to learn from them and make important changes to how we help families. Some of the changes we have made and look forward to full implementation are focused on Admission Prevention – preventing children from coming into care. This will change how we interact with a family; our first response to a family is to help support them. In our initial work with families, we empower our workers to address basic needs, such as providing essential assistance for the purchase of food, bedding, and furniture.

 $V_{α}^{3}$, $\sigma\Delta \cdot C_{α}$ PLΓα', $P\Pi V^{3}$ Γ 9 Α· $\sigma\Delta$ 0 4 Λ $^{$

Many First Nations are developing Band Representative programs, and we are working to incorporate their services and process into how we work with families using Mamow Obiki-ahwahsoowin. We strive for effective communication and collaboration with these programs as we see them as partners to help support the well-being of families and children.

STRENGTHENING FAMILIES

Mamow Obiki-ahwahsoowin allows us to work with each family and their circle of care to help them during difficult times. Our approach honours our traditional way to respond to protection concerns.

We work closely with our families including meeting with them regularly and involving support services in the development of service plans to address their needs. For 2020-21, we finished the year with 987 open family files – an increase of 134 from the start of the year when we were working with 853 families. This is up significantly but the increase is entirely due to our expanded service area as 144 of these of these were families in the Thunder Bay District.

Through training and development, we are also increasing our service workers' skills to provide better supports to our families. We continue to direct families to supports rather than taking children into care. Working with our Prevention Unit and local resources we support families to keep their children safe and at home.

CARING FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH

Following Mamow Obiki-ahwahsoowin, everyone is responsible and involved in raising our children. Even when a family is struggling, this circle of love and support is called upon and involved in the response. We bring children into care only after all other less intrusive alternatives to ensure the children's safety and well-being within their family have been explored and exhausted.

When children come into care we keep children connected to their culture, family, and community by prioritizing placement with extended family in or as close to their home community as possible with the end goal of reunification with their immediate family.

Excluding the Thunder Bay District which we started provided service to in January 2020, we saw a decrease in the number of children in care by just over four percent. This is proof that our Mamow Obiki-ahwahsoowin service model and our emphasis on prevention and early intervention helps to keep families together. Within all our full service area including the Thunder Bay District, we started the year with 494 children in care and finished with 591 children in care. An increase of 97 children, however, 118 were as a result of our expansion to Thunder Bay.

Almost all children coming into Tikinagan care are under the authority and direction of their First Nation, not the court system. With Mamow Obiki-ahwahsoowin, we consult with each First Nation and work with each child's circle of care to respond to protection concerns.

INCORPORATING OUR VALUES

We also have responsibilities placed on us provincially, however, we are committed to culturally appropriate services and the spirit of Mamow Obiki-ahwahsoowin as our first and most important responsibility. We have incorporated the Mamow Obiki-ahwahsoowin values and service model into our service delivery and documentation. In this way, we are able to provide culturally appropriate service while at the same time maintaining compliance with provincial standards. This year, for example, we received a 100% compliance related to child and home safety during the Ministry's review of foster homes.

At Tikinagan, our approaches ensure the proper documentation and plans are in place by developing and using culturally appropriate tools. We recognize that as an Indigenous agency, our strengths come from our storytelling and relationships. And while our way tends to be unique, the tools and policies we developed, such as our Plan of Care for children and youth and Service Plans for families, have strengthened our trust with our families and communities.

SUPPORTING OUR YOUTH

Many of the resources vulnerable youth require are outside their own community, which is why in December 2020 we launched an initiative to identify gaps and build supports for them. The Tikinagan Youth Outreach Program (YOP) is committed to providing outreach and support to young people that encourages and re-inspires them to invest in themselves and their future. This new program helps by building and nurturing values, behaviors, knowledge, attitudes and life skills that reinforce a positive self-esteem and hope for a brighter future. We have one unit established in the Sioux Lookout region and a second planned for the Thunder Bay area, which will then cover the entire area Tikinagan serves.

For additional resources, Tikinagan also developed the Clinical Counselling Unit, which supports our children and youth. They assist in debriefing high risk youth, attending healing circles (case conferences) for children/youth, and providing Mental Health Care Packages. These teams help to keep our high-risk youth closer to home and in Tikinagan's placements.

We also recognize that many of our youth will require continued supports into adulthood. We have spent many years working with transitional age youth and the number of our youth who receive specialized Adult Services has steadily grown.

A PLACE TO CALL HOME

All children have the right to nurturing care and a continuing relationship with their parents, siblings, extended family, culture, language, traditions and community. If a child must leave his/her community, Tikinagan works to ensure that the child's relationships with family, extended family and community are preserved and strengthened.

We maintain a focus on recruitment of community-based and Indigenous foster homes because Indigenous children deserve an Indigenous home. At March 31, 2021, we had 248 foster homes. The most common type of foster parent connection begins when we receive a call from someone who wants to take a family member into their home (such as a niece or nephew) when the parents are facing challenges -- a true customary care approach to fostering with Mamow Obikiahwahsoowin.

We have continued to worked towards familybased care with foster parents and away from group home care. Over the past 5 years, this focus has reduced the number of days in care in group home settings by almost 50%. However we recognize that we will need to continue building culturally appropriate options for children and youth in the area we serve, to keep them closer to home and family. To accomplish this, we have purchased homes, which will be a safe place for our children in care. We look forward to remodeling each home and establishing programs that emphasize our Elders' teachings, language, and culture and create a home-like environment. offer land-based programming, and bring families together.

SERVING FAMILIES IN THE THUNDER BAY DISTRICT

On January 30, 2020, we welcomed the decision of the Ministry to allow our agency to provide child protection services to families from Tikinagan affiliated First Nations who reside in, or are visiting, the Thunder Bay district. We now can ensure our First Nations are properly consulted when it comes to their families receiving service.

In order to prepare for this transition, we hired and trained more staff, expanded office space, and actively began recruiting more foster homes in the Thunder Bay district. We expected the transfers of families and children in care to begin in March 2020, however, the Ministry paused the transition process in May 2020 because of the pandemic. In October 2020, we resumed work on transfers.

We have received positive feedback from newly transferred families. One family said they feel supported and respected by their Family Service Worker. Multiple clients have stated they like the way we work with families and treat them with respect. They prefer the Mamow Obikiahwahsoowin way of helping and supporting families.

WORKING TOGETHER IN A GLOBAL PANDEMIC

As an essential service, we have remained a consistent support for our families and communities during the COVID-19 pandemic and key to this was our community-based staff. We rely on them a lot, especially when communities are in full lock down to prevent further spread of the virus. We truly commend our community-based staff.

We worked hard to adapt how we work and deliver services to ensure the safety of our staff, clients and communities. Equipping and orienting staff to work from home was a first step and one of our biggest challenges. We also provided training to staff on our pandemic measures for when in-person service delivery was required and when required to work in-office. The health of our communities is important, which is why pandemic-related personal protective equipment became essential for operations this year.

To better support our foster parents, we started a foster parent hotline to answer questions and ensured that a worker was available to answer in the language of their choice. We also increased our financial incentives to help with the added costs of fostering during the pandemic.

LEARNING NEW SKILLS

Even during the pandemic, we have continued to focus on building the capacity of our staff including in their very first days with a comprehensive orientation. All of our training delivery had to be adjusted to an on-line format instead of gathering staff together in-person. We adapted curriculum, trainers learned how to conduct training on-line and staff had to learn how to participate in a virtual classroom. It was a huge adjustment for our training department but their efforts were very successful with over 1,000 staff participating in more than 70 different training sessions this fiscal year.

COMMUNICATION KEY TO CONNECTION

One positive outcome of the COVID-19 pandemic is it made us better communicators. This year, we held meetings more often and as a result, we are more connected and more informed than ever before. This is something that has expanded to our work with families.

At our meetings, we start and end our time with a prayer, putting our value of spirituality at the forefront of our work. We regularly pray for our families, communities, and staff. During the pandemic, it was a source of hope and comfort, guiding our leadership and all of our staff.

WILLIAM J. NOTHING AND TOMMY FIDDLER

In the summer of 2020, Tikinagan mourned the loss of two important contributors to the agency's legacy, William J. Nothing and Tommy Fiddler.

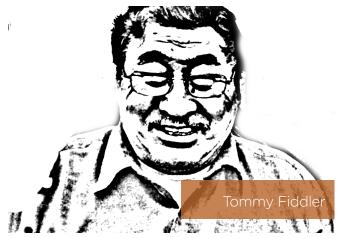

Remembered as a visionary and negotiator for Tikinagan and many other First Nation organizations in Northwestern Ontario, Nothing laid the foundation for our agency. He negotiated a ground breaking memorandum that First Nations Chiefs signed in Kitchenuhmaykoosib Inninuwug First Nation in 1984, which was the founding event for Tikinagan.

From there, Nothing stayed with Tikinagan as Board Chair, and later became Executive Director to help guide Tikinagan through its development stages. Nothing's leadership and vision was instrumental in the creation and development of the agency. Tikinagan Executive Director, Thelma Morris, says his vision endures.

"The legacy of William J. Nothing lives on everyday in the work we do to keep our children connected to our communities, culture, and families. Our communities are empowered because of the work that was done more than 35 years ago under his leadership. And he didn't do it for himself. He did it all for the people of NAN."

Likewise, Fiddler's commitment to Tikinagan's vision was a valuable asset, especially his strong belief in finding the answers and solutions within the communities we serve.

Tikinagan benefited greatly from Tommy's expertise and guidance and we are thankful for his dedication to improving services at the community level. Tommy truly cared for the children and families we serve. He was an honourable man, as evident through his compassion, humility and acceptance of everyone. Fiddler is remembered for his dedicated service on our Board of Directors as a Board Member, serving from 2001 to 2009.
